Please state your qualifications for this Board/Commission/Committee and your objectives if you become a member:

My qualifications include excellent managing and communication skills. I've served in various managerial capacities, most recently that of vice president, global operations, for a privately held company where I oversaw the direction of 200 employees.

I'm adept at identifying and expanding upon individual strengths; I've put this particular skill to use in the business world, and as an unpaid volunteer.

I care deeply about helping to establish and increase the number of sustainable and organic community gardens in the city of Albany, be they located in schools; in open spaces such as parks; or in the yards of willing property owners. In addition to vegetables and herbs, I would emphasize the importance of planting flowers and other plants that are bird, honey bee and butterfly "friendly."

I would love to see a teaching garden/mini "farm" located in a public place, staffed by volunteers, and open to everyone, especially children. Some ideas I have for this garden include chickens and a chicken coop, a beehive, and medicinal herbs, in addition to fruits and vegetables. Ultimately though, if such a garden were approved, public input should dictate what gets included (or not).

If I become a member of the Sustainability Committee, I will gladly work towards the above goals, in addition to assisting where I can with any related projects.

Please list past and present community activities you have participated in:

For many years, I volunteered at KALX Radio in Berkeley (as director of the Women's Programming Department; producer and engineer; reporter; and DJ). I have also volunteered with children in two settings: a women's shelter (I was in charge of art projects); and an elementary school (as a teacher's assistant).

Most recently, I volunteered with Transition Albany, but family illness caused me to temporarily redirect my focus on the health and welfare of a loved one. I will be available to resume volunteer activities beginning April 12.
